6. Challenges

1. Unilateral Cancellations of Events and Training by MNAs

In some cases, MNAs canceled scheduled competitions and training programs without prior notice, causing unexpected disruptions for athletes, officials, and stakeholders. The absence of contingency plans led to logistical and financial difficulties, requiring urgent efforts to find alternatives within a short timeframe. To prevent such situations in the future, it is essential to establish clear policies regarding cancellations, including potential penalties or mandatory advance notice, to ensure smooth and predictable operations.

2. Challenges in Event Management by Host Associations (Limited to a Few MNAs)

While most host MNAs have demonstrated strong commitment to organizing well-managed events, a small number have faced challenges in ensuring smooth coordination and efficient competition operations. In some cases, insufficient cooperation and a lack of proper event management have impacted the overall quality and integrity of competitions. To address this, the Continental Union (CU) aims to strengthen operational guidelines and implement mechanisms that support host associations in delivering well-organized and professional events.

3. Establishing an Institutional Framework for Recognized Taekwondo Certifications

To further expand Taekwondo's global reach, CU sees the need for a structured certification system that provides internationally recognized credentials for coaches, referees, and officials. The absence of such a system limits opportunities for professional development and affects the credibility of training programs. By introducing a CU-led certification framework, we can enhance the legitimacy of training programs and establish uniform standards across member nations, fostering a more cohesive and professional Taekwondo community.

4. Strengthening Referee Training and Standardization

Maintaining consistency in officiating is crucial for ensuring fairness in competition. However, differences in referee training and variations in rule enforcement remain areas that require further attention. To address this, CU seeks to implement a more structured referee education system, including standardized training programs and regular assessments. These efforts will help maintain the highest level of officiating integrity at all levels of competition, contributing to a fair and transparent sporting environment.
