Personal Summary:

I am an Italian versatile lawyer, and my firm is based in Martellago, near Venice. Although criminal law is my main area of practice, over the years I have acquired expertise in several additional emerging and highly specialized areas of the law.

As I live by the sea, I have developed a passion for all legal matters relating to maritime and transportation law, including vessel acquisitions and import, and the yacht business generally.

My career in sports (especially in Karate where I was an athlete of the Italian national team in 1995/1996) also led me to practice sports law, with specific focus on matters of antidoping and abuse of drugs.

During the Olympic four-year periods (2004-2008) I counselled for the Italian Equestrian Federation for doping matters.

During the Olympic Games 2004 in Athens, I was the Legal Counsel for the Italian Equestrian Sport Federation (to support the Italian Team).

In 2013, my passion for animals and horses led me to set up the project FEALU (www.fealu.com), with the clear aim of establishing a solid network of professionals engaged in a broad range of services, including legal advice and assistance in case of mistreatment of animals, accidents, injury and death.
